HOW

þ list of bibliography, reference-list, and abbreviations are recorded & available in þ 'magi.order' file. roots (and lexemes) are mainly derived from dictionaries of Iranic languages listed in BIBLIOGRAPHY subsection.

this text contains my personal notes regarding my thoughts, writing, and speech in Iranig. þ script is based on þ Latin alphabet and incorporates modified letters from þ Polish alphabet & Polish (Programmers) Keyboard.

þ constructed language Iranig (IRA:) & its script IRAL:(based on Polish) were developed following þ standard approach regarding Iranic languages: an analogical-derivational, morphologically productive formation system.

while I am building on Iranian grammar, I'm striving toward þ excellence of Eastern Iranian languages (grammars, etymologies, ...) & I am utilizing þ full capacity of IRA:, via PIE:/PIR:/OIR:, e.g. AVE:, OSS:, SOG:, etc.

this text proposes unifying major Iranian languages under þ IRA: rubric. when a non-PIR element is needed, I give preference to GRC:, in order to extend IRA:. new styles have been devised to provide a firm ground, e.g.

pronunciations ('Ž /ǵ/' v 'Z /z/'); series comma (, etc.); reintroducing grammatic structures/phonologies from Eastern Iranic languages (AVE: ...). there's no capitalization in IRAL:, but for inserting Fremdwort in text.

because þ Iranig builds upon standard Iranian language and grammar, thus no separate section is needed to explain its rules or workings fully for þ careful reader. to master þ grammar, consult books on Iranian grammar.

Throughout this text I shall highlight, when necessary, points that call for clarification; extended commentary on þ shift toward Eastern Iranian languages (e.g. AVE:, OSS:, XBC: ...) will be provided in "IRANIG.ESSAYS".

þ objective remains that a speaker may render lexicon of other PIE-based tongues in Iranig by mastering Iranic roots & affixation, utilizing only simple rules, therefore allowing precise expression of complex meanings.
